HISTORY

In 1963, instigated by Colonel Geoff Matthews, a group of enthusiastic artists met in the supper room at the Burnside Town Hall to create and to promote Art in the district of Burnside. The Colonel envisaged a group of artists of all stages of proficiency and talent guided by him and helping each other to improve their standards.

These excellent ideals have not changed since then, however our Tutor Artists are now paid and the classes more structured.

Many of our members have become recognised Artists and quite frequently members win prizes in community exhibitions. To encourage members to widen their horizons and paint more freely we run workshops in contemporary styles using various mediums.

Colonel Geoff Matthew's initial vision for the promotion of Visual Arts in South Australia continues today.
